Cold Kisses Are Shocking in St. Louis

By United Press

Frankish weather made kissing shocking in St. Louis and gave Florida sunbathers goose pimples today.

But the strange, static combination of storm, cold, and drought also had its deadly serious side.

Crop losses in frost-bitten Florida mounted to $25,000,000. A rash of cold weather fires killed seven children in the Southland. And a major drought threatened the Great Plains.

The worst drought in memory plagued many parts of Texas, and parts of Kansas, Nebraska, and eastern Colorado suffered from dry weather and dust storms.

Texas' 1,430,000 Baptists were called on to pray for rain earlier this week after Gov. Allan Shivers announced that three-fourths of the state was afflicted by drought.

In St. Louis, where there have been 41 straight days without rain, practically everything and everybody tingled with static electricity.

Couples gave each other shocks when they exchanged kisses and department stores reported another problem—shocking sweaters. The electricity and magnetism made even the baggiest sweaters form-fitting, store employees said.

At least one enterprising salesman turned the electricity into a good thing by offering a spray guaranteed to "take the shock out of home life."

Florida residents had troubles of a different and more serious sort. Weathermen forecast at least two more days of biting cold, with scattered frost predicted in most farming areas.

Dade county farmers lost 13,000 acres of winter vegetables worth $10,000,000 and estimated losses on 16,000 acres in Palm Beach and Collier counties rose to $15,000,000.

As a result, prices of tomatoes, corn, squash, beans, and other tender vegetables jumped.

Resort hotel owners also felt the cold's pinch. Any guest who tried to sunbathe was in danger of catching the sniffles, and the fact that New England's temperatures were as warm as Florida's didn't help matters.

Suggests You Don't Fight Old Man Winter, Just Relax and Get Well If You Possibly Can

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone comments of a Pavement Plato: After he reaches an age where he forgets the ecstasy of making and throwing a snowball, the average man often grumbles, "What good is winter?"

Winter has more critics than the income tax. This is unfair to one of the finest seasons of the year. Every season has its own particular virtues, and winter confers upon mankind major blessings.

Your farmer knows the full value of winter. Its snowfalls provide him the water his crop will need next spring. He can reach into a full barrel and pull out an apple a day to keep the doctor away. His labors are fewer, and he has time to write those long, long letters to his congressman on what

British Push More Troops Into Cyprus

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—Britain began sending some 2,000 paratroops toward Cyprus today as a show of strength in the tense Middle East. Dispatch of the airborne "fire brigade" to Britain's Middle East headquarters on Cyprus came amid reports the government was considering slowing down troop evacuations from the Suez Canal zone because of the restless situation in the area.

The giant transport planes began ferrying the special combat group eastward through heavy rain clouds to reinforce Britain's estimated garrison on Cyprus of 100,000 men, many of whom are tied down by disorders arising out of demands for union of the island with Greece.

The giant airlift is due to be completed by tomorrow night. Dressed in camouflaged uniforms the paratroopers' 42-year-old commander, Brig. A. M. H. Butler, took off in the lead plane.

66 Perish in Ship Cabin in Korea

SEOUL (AP)—Sixty-six passengers, trapped in a third-class cabin, were burned to death today as flames roared through a small coastal ship, Korean national police reported.

Police said a cabin boy dropped a kerosene lamp, turning the cluttered, below-deck cabin into an inferno.

The cabin boy, Park Chong Chul, 20, and the captain, Kim Han Suk, were arrested on a charge of negligence.

The 130-ton ship was docked at Samchonpo, about 60 miles west of Pusan on Korea's southern coast.

Eighteen persons were reported injured.

The deal included seven children. Flames boiled up from the straw mat floor, spread to cotton quilts and blankets. Within seconds the tiny cabin was a sea of flames.

First class passengers scurried to safety, but nearly all the third-class occupants were trapped and died, police said.

The ship was reported carrying 127 passengers.

The fire raged for three hours, almost completely consuming the vessel.

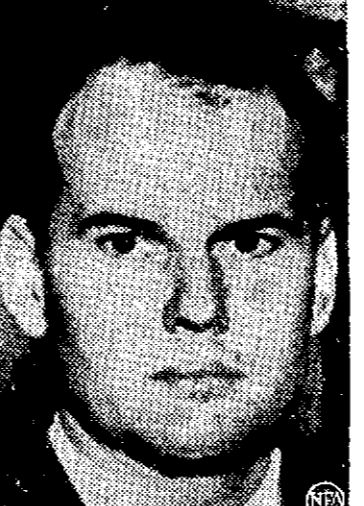

Additional Spending Part of Ike's Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower plans to send to Congress Monday a balanced budget bill that contemplates higher spending, and to indicate that outlays are likely to keep climbing in the next several years.

The actual budget totals are closely guarded until disclosed to Congress.

But on the basis of Eisenhower's State of the Union message and other official pronouncements it seems certain the budget will foresee: 1. spending of between 65% and 68 billion dollars in the next fiscal year; (2) income of at least that much; and (3) requests for appropriations well in excess of projected spending.

At the same time Eisenhower probably will revise his estimates for the current fiscal year, ending next June 30, to predict a balanced budget with spending at about 64 1/2 billion dollars. That would be some three quarters of a billion dollars higher than previously forecast.

DECIDES ON REVIEW—The Ohio Supreme Court decided Wednesday to review second-degree murder conviction of Dr. Samuel Sheppard but rejected a new trial on grounds of "new evidence." Georgian Aid to Segregation Group Offered LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook of Georgia, an outspoken foe of racial integration, will intervene in an appeal of a federal court decision voiding Arkansas' school segregation law.

James D. Johnson, director of the White Citizens Council of Arkansas, announced last night that Cook had notified him by telegram that he would file a brief with the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals as a "friend of the court."

Johnson also is a defense attorney for three pro-segregation organizations which were permanently enjoined by U. S. District Court Monday from interfering with the operation of racially integrated schools at Hoxie, Ark.

He said last night that he had mailed formal notice to the court at Jonesboro, Ark., that the decision would be appealed.

Cook could not be reached for comment on Johnson's announcement. His Atlanta office reported that he was out of the city.

An assistant, Bob Hall, said Cook planned to obtain a transcript of the District Court hearing on the case.

Gov. Orval Faubus declined to comment on the development. Arkansas Atty. Gen. Tom Gentry couldn't be reached.

Meat Specials Varied in U. S. Market

By The Associated Press

Housewives will find a wide variety of meat specials at the nation's food stores this weekend. Beef, lamb, pork, hams and chickens will be featured in major areas of the country.

Various types of beef will be sold at just about the same prices as a week ago, despite a gradual rise in the wholesale market which probably will be reflected at the retail level shortly.

The stiffening in the wholesale market is attributed to a combination of weather and a greater demand for beef products after the holidays.

One chain is marking down prices for pork chops, leg of lamb and chickens by two to six cents a pound in some cities.

Some food industry sources suggest that pork will be a good buy for some weeks to come. They note that the upturn in pork-and-hoof prices has been very small thus far. It is expected that prices will stay well below 1955 levels through the summer. Egg prices are falling after moving generally higher in recent weeks.

Reductions of six to 13 cents a dozen are common in several major chains.

Potatoes, onions and iceberg lettuce are regarded as outstanding buys in vegetables.

In fruit, tangerines are classed as about the best values.

MOVED OUT TOO FAST

CARRARA, Italy, (AP)—Egberto Marchi, a draftee, arrived at an Italian army barracks with his baby son clasped tightly in his arms.

The new soldier explained to smiling guards that the train moved out of his home town station while he was kissing the 10-month-old baby goodbye.

The barracks adjutant turned the baby over the chaplain until Marchi's wife arrives to take the child home.

Slams Faubus for Not Closing Spa Gambling

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)—Atty. Gen. Tom Gentry charged today that Gov. Orval Faubus had violated a campaign promise to "close" Hot Springs and that illegal gambling and liquor law violations had become "open and notorious" during Faubus' year in office.

Gentry declared that the situation at Hot Springs is "comparable to the situation which existed in Phenix City, Ala." shortly before an Alabama attorney general was assassinated in 1954.

He said the "condition is not condoned in any respect by the many, many respectable citizens of Hot Springs who appear to be helpless."

The attorney general, considering an almost certain candidate against Faubus in this year's gubernatorial race, listed 24 places he said were found violating gambling or liquor laws or both in the Hot Springs area last Saturday night in a four-page letter to the governor.

The letter was accompanied by a dozen or so enlarged and mounted photographs which the attorney general told reporters were taken with a concealed camera during last Saturday night's investigation.

The letter said:

"I am giving you this information for your action because of your jurisdiction over the state police and the officers of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, which are charged with the enforcement of our liquor laws and because of the promise you made to the people of the state of Arkansas to clean up this mess."

In the letter Gentry didn't say whether he planned any move other than informing the governor. He told reporters, however, that if Faubus didn't act he would seek a mandatory injunction from Garland Chancery Court to close the establishments.

According to Gentry, extensive gambling equipment was found at the comparatively new Towler Club on Highway 70. Two other widely known establishments, the Southern Athletic Club on Central avenue, and the Pines Club on Highway 70, were listed. At the Pines, mixed drinks were being sold but there was no evidence of gambling at the time of the investigation, the letter said.

Dulles May Have Done It Again

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles has gained a reputation for sometimes starting the harsh facts of his diplomacy in blunt undiplomatic words which stir up controversy.

Today, it appears, he may have done it again.

He may also have sparked a debate in this election campaign year on the effectiveness of the "policy of deterrence" he credits with holding the Chinese Communists at bay in Korea and Indochina in 1953, and more recently in the Formosa area.

In addition, he seems to have opposed sharply the question of the extent to which fear of American readiness to wage atomic war is a brake on Communist expansion.

In an article in Life magazine, but today, Dulles is quoted as saying it is "a pretty fair inference" that America's readiness to fight on a broader scale if necessary brought the Korean War to an end and that the same "policy of deterrence" kept the Red Chinese from marching into Indochina prior to mid-1954 and has stopped them in the Formosa area.

He was also quoted as saying: "You have to take chances for peace, just as you must take chances in war. Some say that we were brought to the verge of war in the three instances cited. Of course we were brought to the verge of war."

"The ability to get to the verge without getting into war is the necessary art. If you cannot master it, you inevitably get into war. If you try to run away from it, if you are scared to go to the brink, you are lost."

"We've had to look it square in the face. We walked to the brink and we looked it in the face. We took strong action."

The three situations Dulles cited took somewhat different forms. In general the United States told the Communists, by various public or private means, that it might go to war if they went to lay—if they attacked Formosa, for instance.

Russia Offers Additional Aid to India

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The Soviet Union is reported sharply stepping up its offers of economic assistance to India.

Indian officials disclosed that the Russians have offered to build a complete aluminum industry and to expand a major hydroelectric project in this country. These and previous Soviet offers to build steel mills and aid Indian oil exploration are believed only a beginning in the Russian campaign.

Informants say, however, the Reds are finding the going slow, with the Indians examining every angle of any Russian proposition.

Indian officials say far will confirm only the Russian offers for the aluminum and hydroelectric projects, which they say are both still in the discussion stage. It was understood the unresolved factors include prices and credit terms.

India's small aluminum industry now produces about 7,000 tons a year. The second five-year plan, starting in April calls for boosting production to 30,000 tons. Officials said Russia has offered to supply technicians and machinery to aid the undertaking all along the line.

The hydroelectric project is at Machkund, in Andhra state. Already under construction, it will have a capacity of about 120,000 kilowatts.

The amount of the Soviet proposals was not disclosed, but U. S. engineers estimate expansion of the Machkund project would involve about 20 million dollars. It is believed the aluminum proposal would cost at least that much.

American circles here said these amounts, with about 100 million dollars involved in the Soviet steel mill proposal, would still leave Moscow below the approximately 250 million dollars in aid the United States has given India in the past four years. But these observers believe Russian economic cooperation is accelerating at a rate fast enough to pass the U. S. program.

Ike Is Still Cagy About Intentions

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's refusal to give assent or dissent to the entry of his name in the Illinois preferential primary left Republicans as uncertain today as before about his second-term intentions.

There were some new predictions that he will seek re-election, but no one claimed to see in the White House statement any clear indication than Eisenhower gave a news conference Sunday at Key West, Fla.

He said then his mind is not so fixed that it cannot be changed. The clear implication was that he has made a tentative decision one way or the other, but he was careful not to say what it was.

His doctors have said it will be mid-February before they can say whether his recovery from a Sept. 24 heart attack is complete enough for him to run.

RESUME NEGOTIATIONS

It was the 32nd Meeting of U. Alexis Johnson and Wang Ping-nan since their talks started Aug. 1.

They announced the agreed to meet again on Jan. 9, continuing their once-weekly routine. There was no indication the Reds were anxious to carry out a threat to break off the talks.

U. N. Set to Warn Israel About Attack

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Israel today faced a strong U. N. Condemnation for her Dec. 11 attack on Syria and a warning that further such incidents would bring sterner measures.

Both Russia and the big Western powers were pressing for such action in the 11-nation Security Council meeting to consider their rival proposals.

The other council members were reported in general agreement that the body must go this far at least. The main point at issue was what form the resolution should take.

The Soviet proposal was worded more bluntly. It also demanded that Israel pay compensation for the loss of life and property in the raid, which was directed against Syrian outposts near the Sea of Galilee in retaliation for Syrian firing on Israeli boats on the lake. Fifty-six Syrians and six Israelis were reported killed in the raid.

Shy Man Wants to Date Attractive Classmate

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a young man in my middle twenties faced with a problem I'm sure you can help me solve. I attend school in the city and have met a very nice group of people. One especially, a young lady, of course, has impressed me quite a bit and I'd like to ask her out some evening. What would be the best way of asking her, and what do you think we could do if she does accept my invitation? I guess you can judge from this letter that I'm rather shy.

Answer: Your problem is elementary enough for Dr. Watson, to solve. I gather that you are attending some specialized school. Watch the papers for lectures on your particular subject. Now to the approach. Just take one step in the right direction and the young lady will doubtless carry on from there. She's probably been saying to herself, "When, oh when, will that lug ask me out?"

Use the subject of the class as the opening wedge. If she has delivered a particularly brilliant piece of work, congratulate her. If you see a point that puzzles you (or that you can pretend does), and she seems assured on it, you might say, "You seem to have a better grasp on this (thing) than I have. I wonder if you'd mind discussing it with me." If her response shows any warmth at all, you're set.

He's Sincere
Dear Miss Dix: I'm 18 and in love. Nothing unusual about that! However, two years ago I was going with Tim and we had an argument which, resulted in a split-up. He went out with another girl and became engaged to her. Recently he's been asking my best girl friend if I still liked him. His engagement is broken and he wants to come back to me. He says he still loves me, that the other girl was only an interlude to save his pride. Do you think he's sincere?

Answer: "The course of true love never did run smooth," says the Bard of Avon. Your love affair follows a familiar pattern. There's no reason in the world to doubt the boy's sincerity or to be afraid of a future together.

Dear Miss Dix: I'm a young wife of 20 and have been married to a wonderful man for a year. The trouble is I get so lonely while he's working. A boy I went with for two years has come into town and has been calling me. I've been seeing him and on occasion I'm not home when my husband arrives and he fusses. I don't want to leave my husband, but I do like fun. Is this wrong? WORRIED WIFE

Answer: Just what did you expect married life to be? Did you think some beneficent relative would underwrite the housekeeping expenses while your husband stayed home and amused you all day? Quite probably this is exactly what you wanted.

If you need diversion, get a ton of dynamite to play with, or introduce a few wild animals in your home; the result would be preferable to the consequences of your present actions.

Before it's too late, do find some innocuous way to alleviate loneliness.

The birds go south only through necessity, not desire. If birds had homes with central heating and could patronize a good, well-stocked grocery store, do you think they'd be crazy enough to wear out their feathers flying all the way to Mexico every year? Not likely.

The ungrateful people who criticize winter do so because they simply don't know a good thing when they have it. They don't know how to get the most out of it. Here are a few advantages of winter:

You won't be bitten by a snake or a mosquito and no chigger will tunnel into you.

You won't catch poison ivy or a sunburn.

You don't have to go on picnics or eat a steak burned to death on an outdoor grill.

There is less Sunday driving. You go out less, and learn to discover anew the fun you can find in your own home by your own hearth.

But above all winter makes you slow down the tempo of your living. Nature, the great psychiatrist, invented winter as a period of rest for all its creatures worn out by the wear and tear of summer's violence.

Man, who has created a frantic civilization in which everyone seems to be racing each other to the grave, needs an enforced hibernation time even more than bears or groundhogs—because he drives himself harder. He has to have a cocoon season to repair his veins from the bloodstorms of August, and to build up his energy for the gaster-paced seasons coming up.

The long nights of winter bring the tremendous gift of more sleep. That is what winter is for—to sleep more. The most satisfying 15 minutes of the year is that extra quarter hour of shut-eye a man at McCreary.

Deputy Breeding said a man and a young woman were being held at Clarendon in connection with the case. He said the couple was not traveling in the car with the convicts, but State Police said it had been established that the couple had been associated with Montos and Jones.

Montos, once one of the nation's most wanted criminals, and Jones escaped early Tuesday from the prison at Parchman, Miss. They left the prison mess hall, broke down a door in a trusty room, climbed a fence and fled under the cover of pre-dawn darkness.

Mississippi officers have speculated that the two men had an accomplice waiting nearby with an automobile.

CLARENDON, Ark. — Two men, identified by police as dangerous escapees from the Mississippi Penitentiary, were believed to be on their way today in a rural area north of this east Arkansas town.

State police tentatively identified the fugitives as Nick George Montos, 29, and Robert L. Jones, who escaped two days ago from a penal farm at Parchman Miss.

Deputy Sheriff F. E. Breeding said the two men were spotted by officers in Clarendon about mid night. He said the fugitives fled out Highway 17 and wrecked their car about six miles north of Clarendon.

He hid himself in after the alarm clock goes off on a cold winter morning. Does life hold a finer luxury? Does Heaven?

Eternal summer is no boon to man, not if life itself is the greatest boon. People live longer in Nebraska, which knows winter, than in a torrid Brazilian city which is not.

Winter is not the great de-slayer; it is the great healer. Don't fight winter. Just use it to relax and get well.

national situation throughout the country. Chief among them are provisions to give the biggest share of the money to the states that need it most and gave sort of a bonus to states which up to now have done the best job in coping with the school problem.

"We must recognize that some states have more financial resources than others," Eisenhower said. "We must recognize that a weakness in education anywhere is a weakness in the nation as a whole."

He proposed three ways of fulfilling this principle:

1. "In distributing federal funds, larger amounts per school-age child should be allotted to states with lower income per child."

2. "In fixing matching requirements, states with lower income should not be required to put up as large a proportion of funds as higher income states."

3. "As the states distribute these funds the highest priorities should be given to school districts with the least economic ability to meet their needs."

In calling for state matching funds, he said that "if federal funds are used merely to replace funds which otherwise would or could be provided at state and local levels, there is no net gain of schools for our children."

Eisenhower noted that many state legislatures have no session this year. He proposed that in the first year of the five-year program federal funds may be matched either by states or local school districts. After that the states would have to supply the matching money.

He called also for a formula that would cut the proportion of federal funds "for those few states which are noticeable lagging."

Spokesmen at the Welfare Department said that only eight or nine states fall into this category and that the remaining 39 or 40 would get a type of bonus for good work performed.

The men were believed to have fled to the woods.

State police at Little Rock said about 40 officers had joined in the search and that bloodhounds were being used. The state police spokesman said a Civil Defense helicopter would be brought into the hunt later.

A Clarendon city police spokesman said officers learned late yesterday that Montos and Jones might be in the area when a service station attendant at West Memphis identified them from a newspaper photo.

Deputy Breeding said a man and a young woman were also being held here in connection with the case. He said, however, that the couple was not traveling in the car with the convicts.

Montos, once one of the nation's most wanted criminals, and Jones, serving a life term for murder, escaped early Tuesday. They left the prison mess hall, broke down a door in a trusty room, climbed a fence and fled under the cover of pre-dawn light.

Some Mississippi officers speculated that the two men had an accomplice waiting nearby with an auto mobile.

Montos was serving seven years for burglary at Hattiesburg, Miss. Jones received a life term for his part in the murder of a fellow convict.

Louis Simply Wants to Play His Horn

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—Louis Armstrong, America's ambassador without portfolio but with horn, is willing to continue making friends for this country wherever he's sent—even behind the Iron Curtain. "Russia? That's okay with me," he says. "They say the Russians don't like music, but that couldn't be true. Some of the best music in the world has come out of Russia. 'Porgy and Bess' opened up there and it was a big smash. If they want me to go, I'll go. "I'll go wherever they send me. It's just like when I was delivering coal. If the company sent me, I'd bring a load to your house. If you'd pay me an extra 30 cents, I'd even stash it in your basement."

"Me I just like to play this horn. If I can make friends for us with it, that's fine. And music seems to do that. A note is a note in any language, and those foreign audiences are really hep. In some of those countries, it's just like going down to New Orleans and playing for all the cats I used to know."

Louis Daniel Armstrong, who still blows the best horn in the business at 55, is taking a rest from his globe trotting to make a movie. It's the "Philadelphia Story" moved to the Newport, R.I. jazz festival and retitled "High Society." Among the high socialites: Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly, Frank Sinatra.

Afterward, Armstrong sat down to talk about his tours. He has been to Europe five times, playing from Spain to Sweden, and has ventured as far as Australia and Japan.

"The cats are wild wherever I go," he said. "After we play 'Back Home in Indiana,' they're with us all the way. It brings the joint down. But then I'll play a quiet number like 'Tenderly' and you won't be able to hear a sound in the auditorium."

"Everywhere you go, they're friendly. They come up and give you little cards for membership in their jazz clubs. The club in Zurich didn't have much money, but they chipped in and bought me this watch. Ain't it a beauty?"

"They got all my records. Some even have two copies of each. In case they break one."

Over pumping of wells in Florida has led to seepage of sea water as far as eight miles inland in some places.

Grounded Destroyer Is Floated Free

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The escort destroyer Basine, grounded off Cape Henry since early last Thursday, was floated this morning and pulled clear.

The salvage tug, Seneca, still is grounded about 100 yards away. The Navy said it had hopes the Seneca would be pulled off today.

The Basine was blown aground last Thursday and the Seneca grounded Saturday during the fourth attempt to free the Basine.

News Feature Adds to Lull on Weekend

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS-TV has an excellent new program on CBS Sunday News presided over by Eric Sevareid. It fills a void in weekend television news programming.

In his first edition last Sunday Sevareid showed that he recognizes front page news. That's worthy of mention because some television commentators sacrifice front page news for secondary news—chiefly because films of the less important events are available.

As time passes it's probable that Sevareid will be haunted by a frequent paucity of important weekend news. One hopes that he and his CBS force will develop a great variety of news features which on many a dull weekend could well fill 25 minutes of the 30 minutes allotted to CBS Sunday News.

A good example of a news feature was shown Sunday in a report from London on British commercial television.

George Schaefer is one of the most skillful directors in television, as his work on Hallmark Hall of Fame (NBC-TV) regularly reveals. Perhaps it was not his fault that "The Corn Is Green," is seen on television Sunday, was inferior to the Broadway stage presentation many years ago starring Ethel Barrymore.

Eva Le Gallienne, as a woman who wants to bring enlightenment to a dark bit of Wales, simply lacked the warmth, gusto and conviction that Miss Barrymore brought to the role. John Kerr lacked the tough abrasive quality of a young Welsh miner. The result, to one viewer, was rather wooden drama—at least in the first hour of the hour and a half show.

The kindest one can be about The NBC Comedy Hour, which was launched on NBC-TV opposite the Ed Sullivan Show on CBS-TV, is this: Let's pretend it wasn't launched last Sunday. Let's pretend it's going to be launched next Sunday where the ways are better greased.

Jothan Winters and Bob and Ray supplied some fun, but the rest of the hour fell flat. Just what to do about it must be troubling many earnest minds. For one thing, has anybody considered pulling it out of Hollywood

Dulles Finally Calls on Folks to 'Wake Up'

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON, (AP)—A few dates and statements out of the life of Secretary of State Dulles offer some insights into his ideas about foreign policy and his handling of it.

In April 1952, after watching the Truman administration for seven years devise various means for blocking Soviet expansion—such as foreign aid and military alliances—Dulles said:

"The United States was too much on the 'defensive' when it should have taken the initiative; it was 'dancing to whatever tune' the Russians played; and 'most of our actions have been reactions to Soviet Communist actions.'"

Since he became secretary of state in 1953 he has followed in a general way the broad policies of former President Truman: a continuance of foreign aid and even more military aid. It is perhaps the only way. No one in authority has advocated another.

Last Nov. 29 Dulles told a news conference the United States "very distinctly" had the initiative in the Middle East. He said: "I believe what we are doing in the Middle East is of incomparably greater importance and significance than these tentative proposals the Soviets are making."

After this expression of confidence the secretary said the United States was not going to be drawn into an attempt to match every offer of economic aid the Soviets may make to the Middle East and Asia.

But on Dec. 20—by this time the visits of Soviet leaders to the Middle East and Asia were being considered a propaganda success, at least—Dulles made it known the administration wanted to step up its aid to the Middle East.

And President Eisenhower, although there has been congressional opposition to continuing and prolonging foreign aid—said in his Jan. 5 State of the Union message his administration wanted to set up a 10-year foreign aid program.

Then yesterday Dulles, with Eisenhower's approval, called on the nation to "wake up" to all the implications facing this country in its struggle to keep the backward countries from Russia by economic help.

"It wasn't the call so much that was unusual as the way in which it was made."

Dulles and his State Department have responsibility for making foreign policy. But Dulles said he and Eisenhower had approved a statement prepared by the American delegation to the United Nations.

This statement informed the country the Russians have shifted their tactics and that defeat in competing with them in helping underdeveloped countries economically might cost this country the cold war.

Why Dulles had not long before this called on the country to "wake up" or why the warning had to be thought up by the U.N. delegation instead of the State Department isn't clear.

The Story of a Man, His Love for Dog

SEATTLE, (AP)—Nobody had really expected to find Bonnie alive.

The little 2-year-old wire-haired terrier had been buried for 4½ days when she bounded into the arms of her master Jim Sneddon yesterday.

The story of a man and his love for a dog started grimly last Thursday. A great mound of rain-loosened dirt smashed into Sneddon's home.

Sneddon's 10-year-old daughter Heather was buried alive for 15 minutes in her bedroom before Sneddon, a University of Washington photographer, clawed his way to her and lifted her to safety.

Sneddon and his wife considered themselves lucky to escape with their lives.

But they mourned too for Bonnie, trapped in the basement when the slide roared into the house.

Sneddon, 36, taken to the hospital with minor injuries, told this wife that some way, somehow, he would dig out his dog. Immediately on his release from the hospital the following day, he went to the house.

"I called to Bonnie and she didn't answer. I saw how the entire floor had caved in and how impossible it seemed to find her alive."

Then, yesterday, Sneddon received a telephone call from an unidentified woman who said she had heard a dog barking under the ruins of his home.

Sneddon raced to the demolished home. He grabbed a shovel and he started digging.

"I could hear Bonnie whining," Not barking, just whining.

His wife Irene got four other men to help him dig.

Three hours later, one of the men reached into an air pocket between two timbers and pulled forth a gaunt but otherwise uninjured Bonnie.

The little terrier scrambled up a mudbank from the ruins of the house into Sneddon's waiting arms.

Farm experts estimate that 80 million tons of agricultural limestone are needed for use on U. S. soils.

HEAT WAVE?—This picture may make you feel a little warm under the collar, but these buildings in Pittsburgh, Pa., aren't shimmering in the heat. The hot-as-Hades effect was achieved by the photographer placing a piece of corrugated glass in the enlarger between the negative and the lens. Thus the image on the photographic paper became distorted.

CHAPTER XXXIV

Jered looked away from his father. He studied Captain Proctor. There was the stronger of the two, he realized once more. The captain sat warming his brandy glass between his hands. Just the small, dim anchor tattoo at the base of his right thumb showed him as a sailor. The quality of the clothing, the beaked and veinous nose, the plump cheeks, even the comfortably assured posture in the wingback chair reminded Jered of the patrician merchants with whom he had done business in France, Russia, China, England. The captain belonged to a class; he mustered among the wealthy of the world. But the question was still worth while.

"Is that why," he asked Captain Proctor, "that you were so blasted rude to Kaul at your own dinner table?"

"Yes," Captain Proctor said. He sipped from the brandy. His cheroot ash toppled gracefully onto the hearth. "Let me remind you that my servants have eyes and ears. Salem is a place where very little is hidden. Make a warm welcome for your yellow-skin friend and within the week your father and me would be told to give up our places in East India Hall. To say nothing of what might happen to the Southern trade."

"Bilge," Jered said. The rage had broken through his control. "The color of a man's skin can't mean that much."

"Jered, lad," his father said, openly pleading. "Even in the great days of the Whamboa trade we had no Chinese here as guests. Nor did they sail in our ships. We kept aside from them."

"All for profit, hey?" Captain Proctor laughed. "Now if your friend could bring us some trade, if there was copra of value in his islands, or a quantity of pearl, the thing would change. I'd be happy to outfit him in a schooner, get him to blazes off this coast."

"You must reckon him for a trouble-maker. I don't doubt that the East India Hall lot have him marked down as such."

"Not Kaul, no," his father said. "But you, Slack off the temper somewhat. Hearken to what I tell you. It ain't us you fight in the matter. We couldn't take another course even if we was to have a mind to. Stand up with you the way you feel and we'd be ruined. There's just no sense to buck the bigwigs here and up and down the coast."

Jered cursed, but at his own sense of futility. He knew, rage still burning around the recognition, that what his father said was true. The wealth that owned American shipping was in the hands of the traders and merchants and owners of vast properties. Those were the men who had bitterly opposed Jefferson to the last. They had their inflexible tabus just as in the far islands Kaul's people had theirs.

There was Jewel Owen who with her father on a European voyage in his brig had met, fallen in love with and married a young Parisian. A handsome fellow, as Jered remembered him, and talented, a portrait painter by profession and a Huguenot whose folks had survived the persecutions. In Salem, though, he was an outcast; nobody desired to sit for a portrait by him, his paintings went unsold, and he gave up and disappeared, was supposed to have drifted westward toward the Mississippi. Six months after he'd left Jewel hanged herself in the garret of her family's home on Washington Square.

Elkins Colebaw had tried going against the Salem current, too. He had been a widower, then come to care for the housekeeper who had tended him and his children. The trouble there was that she was supposed to have a dash of Pequot tribe blood on her mother's side. Elkins married her anyhow. But when he insured his ships for the next voyage he had to pay a tremendous rate. Cargo went to other ships instead of his; captains quit him, and mates. He sold out before he was an absolute bankrupt.

Ike Would Be Smart to Stay Mum a While

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower would have some good political reasons for staying mum a while if he has decided not to run again.

He has already indicated he reached some decision because he said his mind is not so fixed that he can't change it.

He'd probably anger a lot of Republicans if he said he won't run now instead of waiting till mid-February when the doctors say whether they think he's able to.

They could say: "The party needs him but he made up his mind even before waiting for the doctors to tell him what shape he's in."

Eisenhower could forestall that kind of complaint by waiting until after the medical verdict is in. He may do that, if he's not going to run.

By the same token he could hardly say he will run until the doctors tell him and the country whether they think he's physically able to.

If he has about decided not to try again he could, by waiting a while before saying so, get the maximum mileage out of his program.

Right now he is sending the major parts of his program to Congress in special messages.

Last week he sent up his take of the Union message, on Monday his farm program. Tomorrow it will be his education program, on Monday his budget.

But if he said now he won't run again, attention for his programs almost certainly would get lost sight of in the hub-bub over his announcement.

For days the papers would be full of his decision, the dilemma of the Republican party, speculation on likely candidates, and then perhaps announcements by some of the Republicans who would like to fill Eisenhower's shoes.

By mid-February, when Eisenhower gets the doctors' word on his physical condition, all the major parts of his program should be in Congress' hands.

For at least that long—or as long as the Republicans still have some hope he'll head their ticket again—he can depend on their almost undivided support.

If he says he won't be a candidate, some members of his party in Congress may pull away from him. But it's hard to see many of them doing that.

And for a good reason: Eisenhower's program and their support for it will have to be the main talking point of the Republicans in this year's election campaign.

Their chief hope of winning in 1956 is Eisenhower, whether or not he runs, and the claims they can make to supporting him and seeing eye to eye with him on most things.

Resignation of Hoxie Supt. Is Accepted

HOXIE, (AP)—The resignation of Hoxie School Supt. K. E. Vance was accepted on unanimous vote of the School Board last night amid new demands for an investigation of Vance's handling of school funds.

Vance resigned last month on the day that Prosecutor W. J. Arnold officially criticized his financial policies, which Arnold said resulted in a $3,500 shortage in school money.

Arnold said he found no grounds to support criminal charges against Vance because there was no proof that the superintendent personally gained from small loans he admitted making to himself and other school employees. He added that the money had been returned.

However, a group of segregationists, whose demands prompted Arnold's probe, now have petitioned Circuit Judge Andrew Ponder of Newport to call a special session.

might fight and win. Not that he was whipped. But, lacking the money, he was forced to temporize with these men, find some way to combat them that up to here had escaped him.

"I was wrong," he said. "I should have been able to figure it." "Four the lad another brandy," Captain Proctor told Phillip Naish. "Now let's talk ship. Jerry, we've been holding off telling you that we have a clipper laid down on the ways in Boston A Donald McKay design and ready to take to sea. We fancy you to go master for her."

Jered placed his glass on the mantelpiece after his father had refilled it. A fine moisture was in the cracks of the palms of his hands. His mouth had a wry, dry taste, the rage had left him nervous and confused. He felt himself suddenly at a distinct disadvantage. This pair handled him nicely, with only a few rough spots along the way. Sure as sure, Phoebe would tell him that he'd been horns-woggled, and he hadn't begun to come upon an answer for Kaul.

"Gentlemen," he said, "it's my second night in port in well nigh a year and a half. Phoebe and my friend are waiting for me. Last time in, you gave me a night shore. I'd like a spell so's I can think. But, how about these steamers? We passed one off the Cape May. Isn't there profit in them, and a berth, maybe, for a fella like Kaul?"

of the Lawrence County Grand Jury to look into the case.

Judge Ponder said last night that he hasn't received the petitions, and declined to comment until he has had a chance to study the request.

In offering his resignation, Vance said he was forced to do so because his wife's health had suffered during the bitter dispute between pro-segregation forces and the School Board over the integration of Negroes and whites into Hoxie's schools. Vance, along with the board members, had been under pressure from segregationists to revoke the integration order.

The Hoxie Committee for Segregation also has sued the School Board in Lawrence Chancery Court on charges of practicing illegal purchasing and employment policies. The suit is pending. Petitions for the special Grand Jury probe, circulated Monday night at a segregation rally in Walnut Ridge, also ask the jury to investigate these charges.

Ellenders Says GOP Is Just Backing Him

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Sen. Ellender (D-La.) said today the Senate Republican Policy Committee "is just backing me up" by its unanimous vote yesterday calling for speedy action on a new farm program.

Chairman Bridges (R-NH) of the policy group told newsmen the committee felt that any new legislation should be enacted no later than mid-April if farmers are to count on its for this year's crops. Ellender, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said in an interview that Republicans "can get a farm bill in a hurry if they just cooperate."

He recalled that he has urged that Congress complete work on a farm bill by Feb. 15.

He added that his committee may make some changes or additions to the farm program outlined by President Eisenhower in a special message to Congress Monday. The program included a proposed soil bank under which subsidies payments would be made to farmers who cooperate in cutting back production of crops already in surplus.

"I think we may have to make those payments mandatory," Ellender said. "The first thing we must do is to reduce our surplus."

es. And the way to do that is mandatory program. "After all the soil bank program is not a new idea. But I name," Congress previously authorized payments to farmers to cut surplus production and build up soil fertility. "All we really need to expand under present law is some additional money from Congress."

Senate and House farm leaders said that so far no final legislative draft of the new program has been forthcoming from the Senate of Agriculture Benson, but Sen. (R-Vt.) senior GOP member of the agriculture committee, Benson may have the ready Thursday.

The House Agriculture Committee unanimously endorsed yesterday Eisenhower's proposal to exempt farmers from the 2 percent a gallon federal tax on gasoline not used on highways.

EXTRA GOOD
because it's NATURAL

This demonstrates the value of sodium to soils (left). The crop was side-dressed with Chilean Nitrate of Soda (26 per cent sodium); at right, no sodium. The extra values—sodium and the minor elements—help account for Chilean's remarkable all-round efficiency.

CHILEAN NITRATE—WORLD'S ONLY NATURAL NITRATE

For small grains, corn, cotton, tobacco, pasture, fruits, vegetables—Chilean Soda top-dressings and side-dressings assure lowest costs and extra profitable results. Here's why:

Natural Chilean is extra good for soil and crop because it's natural—the only natural combination of nitrate nitrogen, sodium and minor elements. Chilean Soda is the ideal way to feed a hungry crop with life-giving plant food.

Natural Chilean works fast. The nitrogen content is 100 per cent nitrate nitrogen—ready to work immediately after application. This assures maximum yields and quality, protection against losses and extra profits per acre.

Natural Chilean boosts yields. 100 "Make sure you pounds produce as much or more crop than gets de NATCHEL 100 pounds of any other nitrogen fertilizer—regardless of nitrogen content. Also, every ton contains sodium equivalent to 650 pounds of commercial limestone in acid-destroying efficiency.

Natural Chilean fights acidity. Because it corrects acidity and improves potash, phosphorus and minor element deficiencies, Chilean Soda is one of the most efficient and economical nitrogen fertilizers for top-dressing and side-dressing. Ask for Bulldog Soda. Look for the Bulldog on the bag.
